Editor's Foreword

When the 1964-65 school year draws to an end, another chapter in the history of McCollum High School comes to a close. As the graduating Class of 1965 becomes the first class to attend McCollum the full three years, this class is merely culminating a long line of admirable "firsts." Second of the original two classes at McCollum, the Class of 1965 helped institute many of the traditions and customs which will endure as long as there is a McCollum High School.

The Staff decided to dedicate the 1965 Wrangler to Mrs. Gladys McCollum, and in her honor chose a Scottish theme. The endsheets constitute a landscape scene symbolizing the beauty and warmth of Scotland. The section dividers depict the various types of apparel composing the national dress of Scotland.

The members of the 1965 Wrangler staff have dedicated themselves to the task of preserving all of the wonderful memories of 1964-65, and sincerely hope you, the students of McCollum High School, will find your Wrangler enjoyable and will cherish it in the coming years.

Staff Honors Mrs. G. McCollum

With pride and gratitude the staff of The 1965 WRANGLER dedicates this year-book to "the mother of our school," Mrs. Gladys McCollum.

Mrs. McCollum, wife of the late Dillard McCollum after whom our high school was named, has served as a faculty member for the three years McCollum has been in existence.

She is loved and respected by students because of her willingness to help each individual. She inspires school spirit and pride which is revealed through her support of Cowboy activities.

"For your spirit and your pride we will remember you. And as the years go by thoughts and memories will abide"... Mrs. McCollum we will never forget you and the contributions you have made to McCollum High School.

George Vakey Heads McCollum High

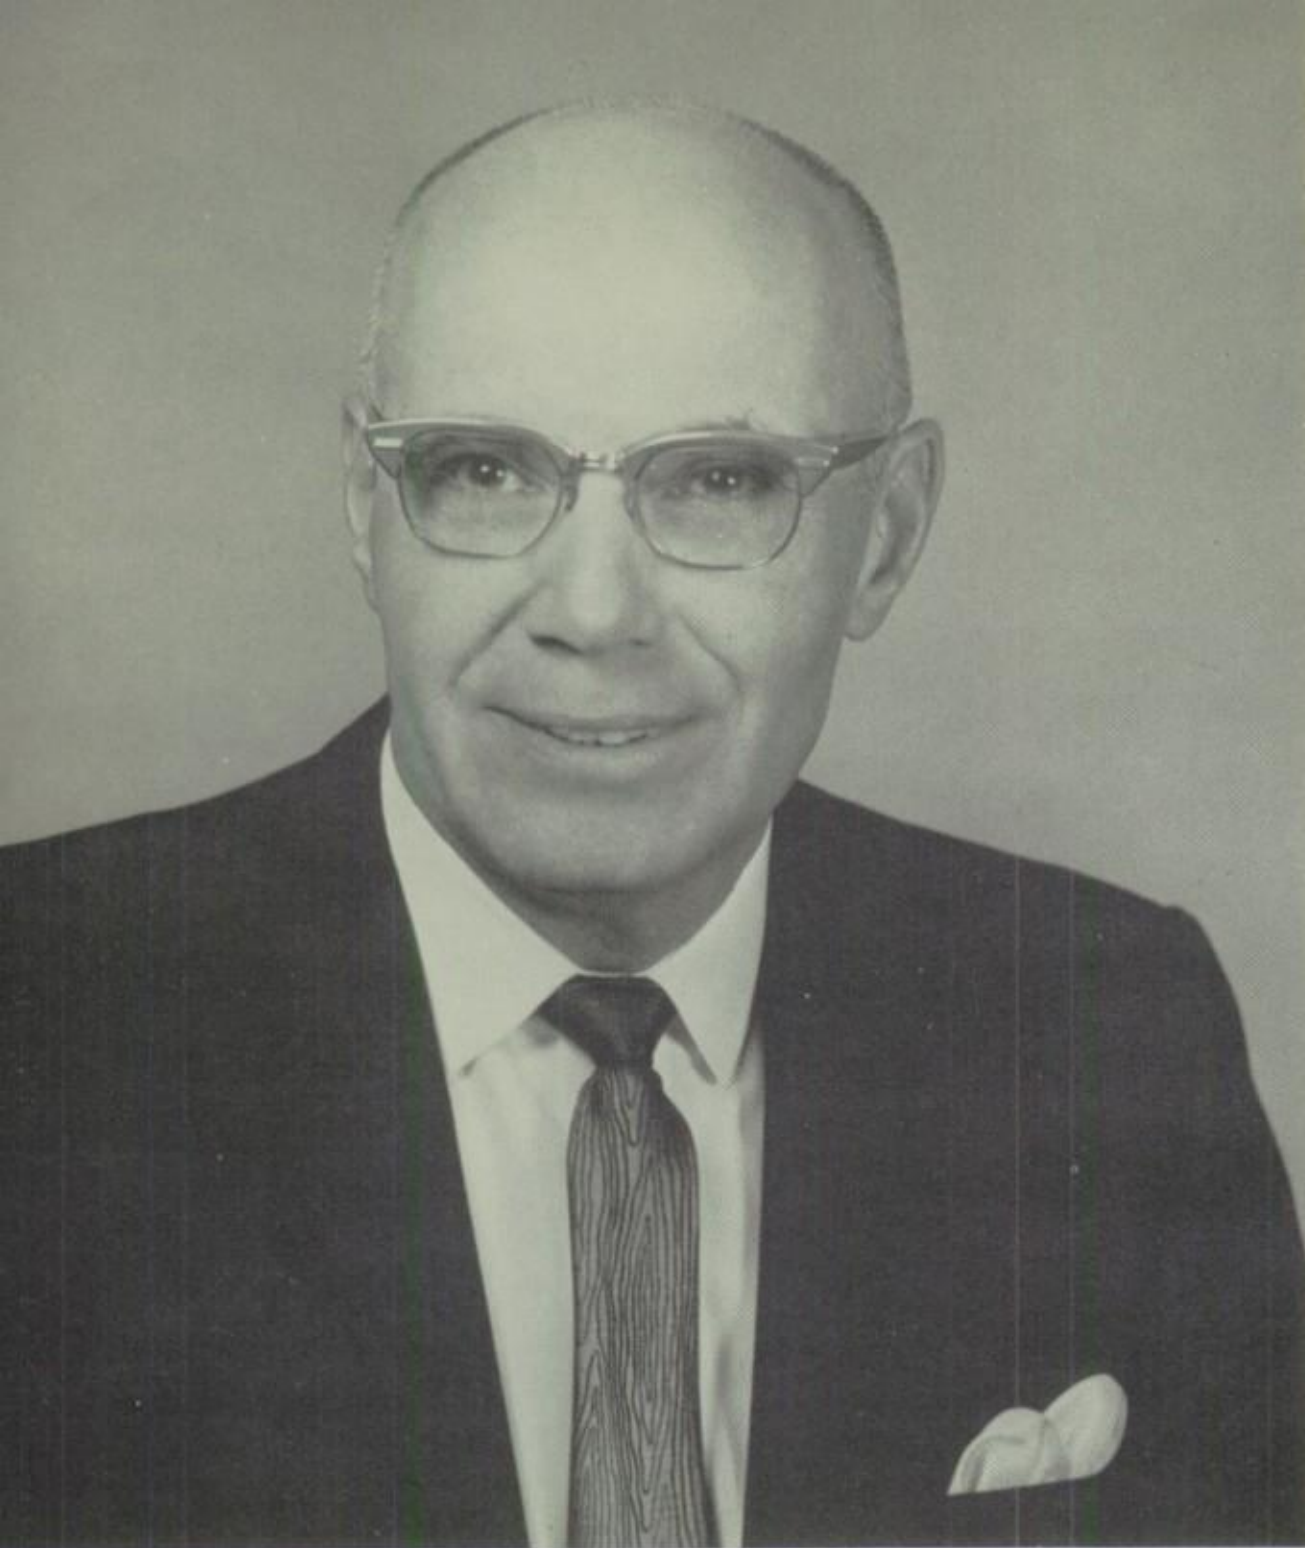

Mr. George Vakey, McCollum principal, attended Texas A&M College until the middle of his junior year when he chose to leave school to serve his country during World War II. When he returned to his academic endeavor, he entered Trinity University and obtained a Bachelor of Science and Masters of Education degrees.

Later Mr. Vakey accepted a position on the faculty of Harlandale High School, teaching American history, world history, Texas history, and commercial law. In 1953, he assumed the duties of counselor at Harlandale High School.

In the school year of 1962-1963 Mr. Vakey was selected as the first principal of the new McCollum High School. His role is to develop the school curriculum, employ faculty members, and serve as their advisor. He also is responsible for the organization of the school and securing needed equipment. Through his leadership the student body is guided toward the attainment of good citizenship and cooperative spirit.

Mr. Earl Ott has been vice-principal of McCollum High School for the three years the school has been in existence. He also fills the position of Dean of Boys.

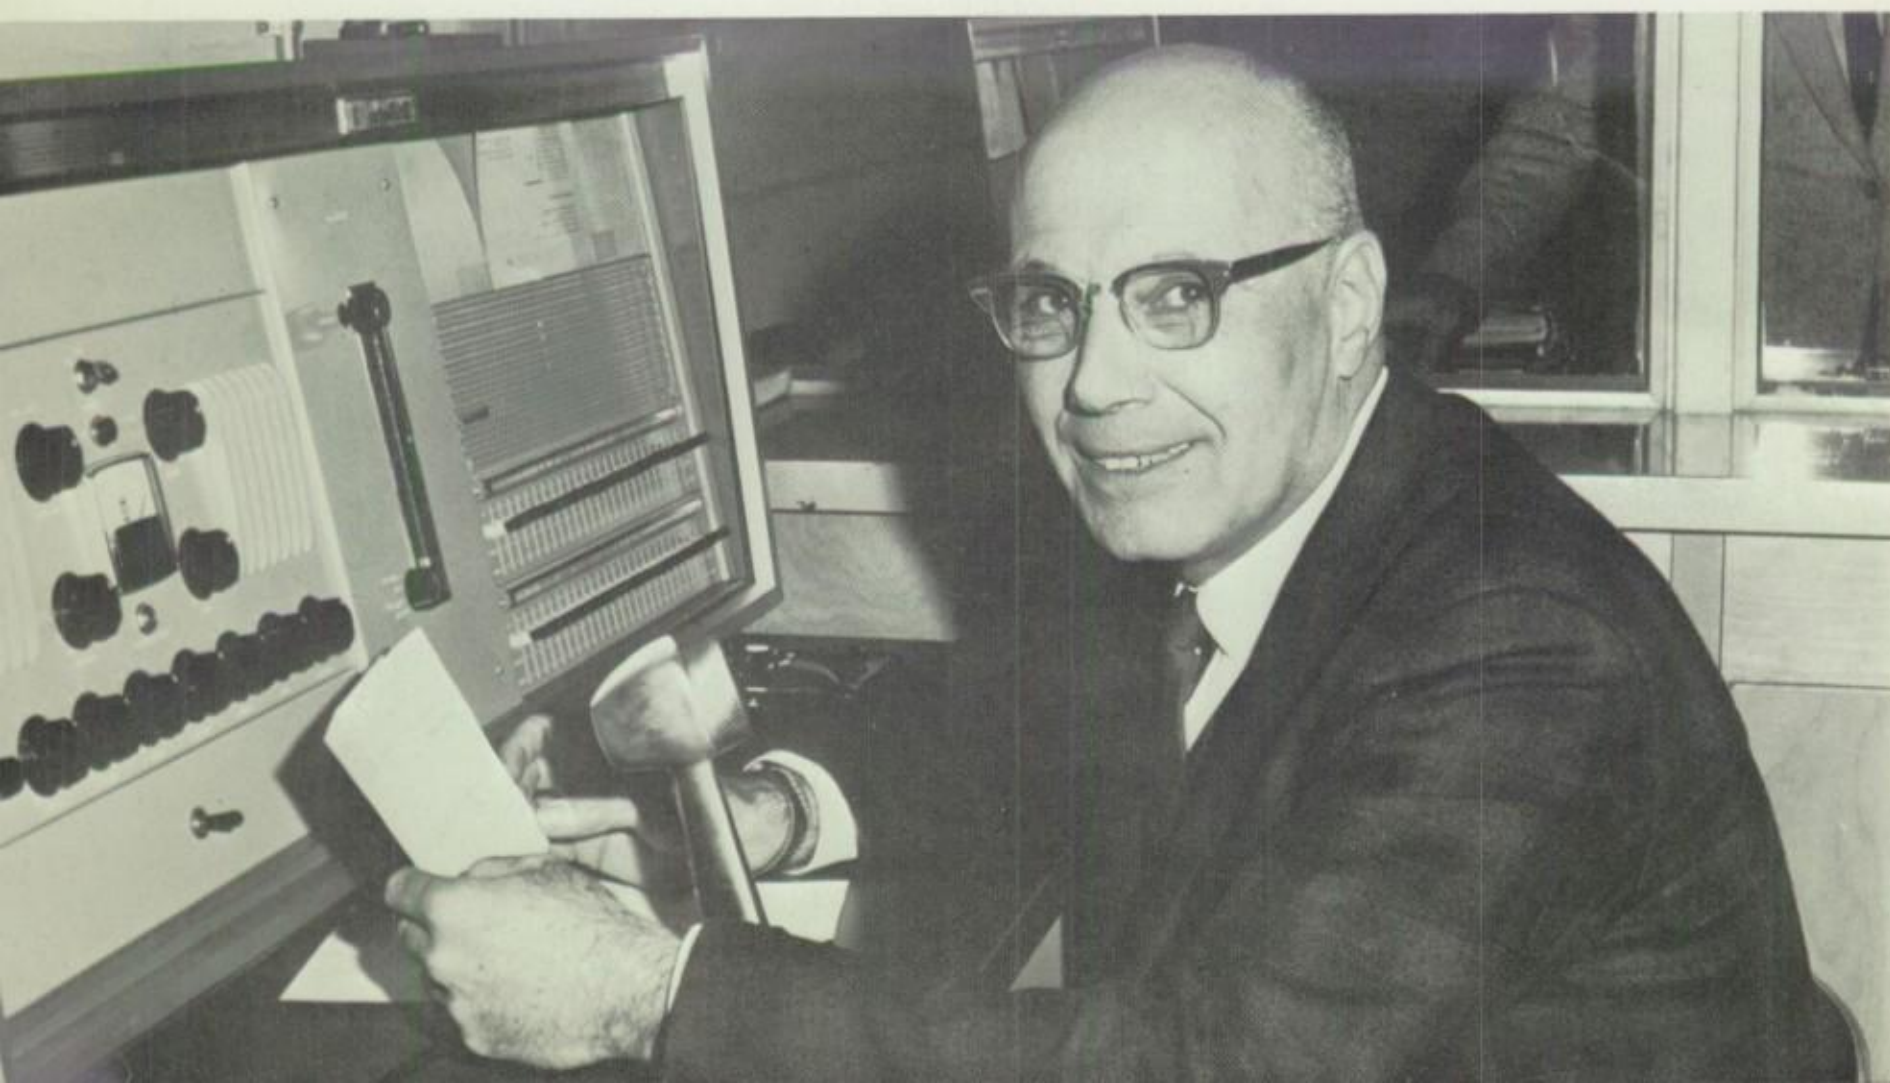

Previous to working for McCollum, Mr. Ott taught bookkeeping and secretarial training at Harlandale High School.

Mr. Ott's Bachelor of Science degree was received at Trinity University. He earned a Master of Education at Southwest Texas State College.

His main hobby is music. He recently donated his private Hammond electric organ to McCollum High School.

Students Review Past

American, Texas, and World History are taught at McCollum High School. Civics and economics are also a part of the curriculum.

These courses provide an opportunity for democratic thinking and an ability to understand the changing world through a review of the past. The goal of American and Texas History classes is appreciation of state and national growth and development. These history courses combined with world history and civics also seek a useful application of ideas learned from past events to build a brighter future.

The geographical, social, economic, and political influences upon people are studied to understand the emergencies and the ends of societies. Relationships and interests of state, national, and world civilization are factors of study in order that the student can realize the need to interpret affairs both current and past.

Economics stresses the understanding of structures and functions of our economic system which involves the study of resources, technology, and production and distribution of goods and services. Causes and remedies of changes in employment and business are also studied.

Mr. George Farris explains the typing assignment to Pat Mayfield.

Shorthand, bookkeeping, typing, and commercial law compose the commercial department at McCollum High School.

Typing I develops good work habits at machines. A desire to learn accurate typing is implanted in students through competition with each other. Typing II develops the proficiency, speed, and control needed by good typists. Business letter form is also taught as a wide base for future secretarial work.

Gregg Shorthand is the effective theory followed for classroom teaching. Flexibility makes it easy to use. Students learn to take dictation and transcribe material at a high rate of speed.

Commercial law acquaints students with basic principles of business law such as contracts, writs, and remedies. Situations and transactions are studied along with negotiable instruments of business. Ethical and social standards not influenced by law are covered. Such a course is a foundation of future businessmen.

Bookkeeping teaches correct accounting necessary in private life. Students learn, too, how to keep profit over expenditures for the business world.

D.E. Provides Student Jobs

Vocational education consists of home-making, distributive education, air conditioning and refrigeration, and automotive mechanics.

Homemaking covers all areas of family and community living. Experience gained is for a better life either in marriage or through higher education. Interest obtained in this class may lead to students working in many fields such as dietetic workers, interior decorators, and costume designers.

Distributive education is a training program for youths entering retail, wholesale, and service occupations. Many types of subjects concerning distribution are taught such as merchandising, buying, advertising, retail credit management, and operational control courses. General and specific instructions are given in relation with the students.

Air conditioning and refrigeration is designed to teach students basic principles of repairing and understanding the mechanics of these machines. To be able to perceive troubles and use tools to correct troubles is a goal of this class.

Automotive mechanics deals with understanding the mechanical arrangements of many makes and models. Students are taught the use of tools to overhaul engines and adjust brakes. This class is preparation for future professional mechanics.

At a time when understanding and accomplishment of fitness is so vitally important for daily functions, the Health and Physical education department accepts the challenge to provide, promote, and develop those qualities which will better adapt their students for a progressive society. A co-ordination of mind and body requires total growth with regard to supplying worthwhile emotional, social, and moral experiences.

A more complete understanding of the mechanics and care of the body, first aid, diet, and physiological development is the aim for the Health program. When blended with the activity program, the result should be an individual with the capacity "to live most and serve best."

of Pastels in Art

Art classes, choir, and band compose the fine arts curriculum at McCollum High School.

Students interested in learning to play musical instruments join the band. Working and learning together, these students gather new appreciations for music and instruments. The study of music styles, care of instruments, and use of discrimination for music, promote these appreciations.

For non-instrumental students who wish to learn music and perform in a musical organization, choir is offered. Choir, a more advanced level than music classes, instructs the techniques of choir singing. This instruction provides a groundwork on good music by composers of various styles, periods, and nationalities.

Aesthetic creativity is taught in art classes. These classes offer students an opportunity to develop their imagination in forms that can be seen, touched, and enjoyed. As art is a language of expression, students are taught to work logically towards expressing their feelings and ideas.

Exam Requires Informative Speaking

McCollum's language arts program includes four years of English, and two years of Latin, Spanish, journalism, and speech.

English, available to students for four years, provides learning experiences from basic grammar to advanced senior literature. Intensive reading and writing helps students to create, organize, and express ideas intelligently. Through studies of American and English literature, appreciation of good writing is an art strived for by students.

Latin and Spanish are the foreign languages offered by the school curriculum. Because of their function in present societies, these languages are taught differently. Latin is taught for understanding of great cultural literature during the Roman Empire's Golden Age. First year Latin is devoted to grammar. Actual translation of great authors is done in second year Latin. Projects are also part of learning to inspire students to delve deeper into the subject. Spanish, as a basic part of the American scene, is taught more intensively for oral and written comprehension. Learning new sounds and understanding vocabulary is the basic concentration during the first year to be covered in more detail the second year. Projects, too, help students acquaint themselves with Spanish culture. Both Latin and Spanish are preparations for advanced college courses.

Journalism and speech are other arts offered for written and oral presentation of ideas. Journalism teaches an appreciation for newspapers and magazines. Thus students learn the processes of editing publications. Publication of the school annual and newspaper are part of the activities of journalism. Speech is taught to attain attitudes, knowledge, and skills which develop students, mentally, emotionally, physically, and socially.

Science and math curriculums are scheduled at McCollum High School to provide students a part of the base of knowledge this modern world demands. Included in the science courses are biology, chemistry, and physics. The mathematics department offers commercial math, algebra, plane and analytical geometry, and trigonometry.

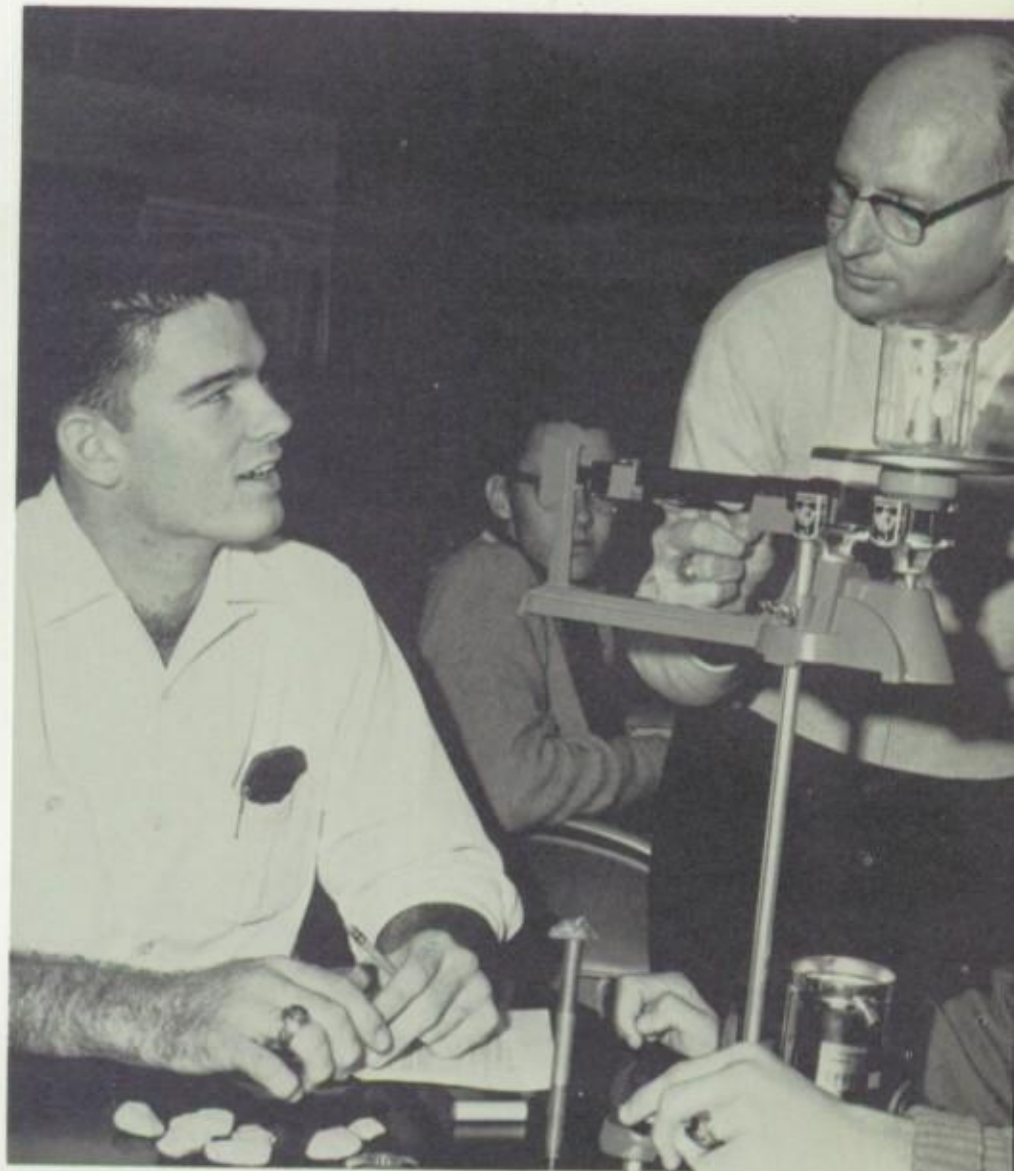

Mathematics, as a science of numbers, is taught for a development of logical thinking in students. Commercial math strives for a comprehension of fundamental principles of math. In both years of algebra, proficiency in reasoning problems and understanding abstract principles is sought. Plane geometry teaches students to prove and apply geometric facts on a plane and in space. An advanced course of math, analytical geometry, develops and improves proficiency in graphing and understanding rectangular and polar coordinate systems. In conjunction with other higher math courses, trigonometry develops a basis for mensuration used in all scientific and mathematical jobs.

Sciences including biology, chemistry, and physics deal with the human body and its surrounding state. Anatomy and natural functions of the human body and environment's influences upon it are studied in biology. Chemistry deals with composition of compounds and reactions of chemicals. Names of chemicals and equipment are learned as well as useful applications of chemistry for daily life. Mechanics are studied in physics. Newton's three laws are also studied along with the forces of heat, wave motions in sound and light, electricity, and magnetism.

Purpose of the McCollum Chapter of the National Honor Society is to recognize and encourage scholarship, to promote worthy leadership, to inspire the development of good character, and to stimulate a desire to render service to the students of McCollum High School.

Seniors must attain a grade average placing them in the upper quarter of the class to be eligible for the Honor Society. Junior candidates, elected in the spring, must have an average of 92 or better. Each candidate for membership in the Honor Society must complete an activity sheet listing all honors received, offices held, and activities in which the candidates have participated during high school.

In October, the NHS presents a program for the Parent Teacher's Association and in January, the club sponsors an annual Shindig for McCollum students. YES, a program to obtain jobs for students was originated by the National Honor Society in McCollum this year. The NHS also selects a student from each class to be honored in the "Chanter" every month. McCollum's NHS has the honor of being parliamentarian of the San Antonio Area Association of National Honor Societies.

To understand the DECA or Distributive Education Clubs of America, one only has to interpret their emblem. Vocational understanding, leadership development, civic consciousness, and social intelligence are the four points represented by the diamond structure.

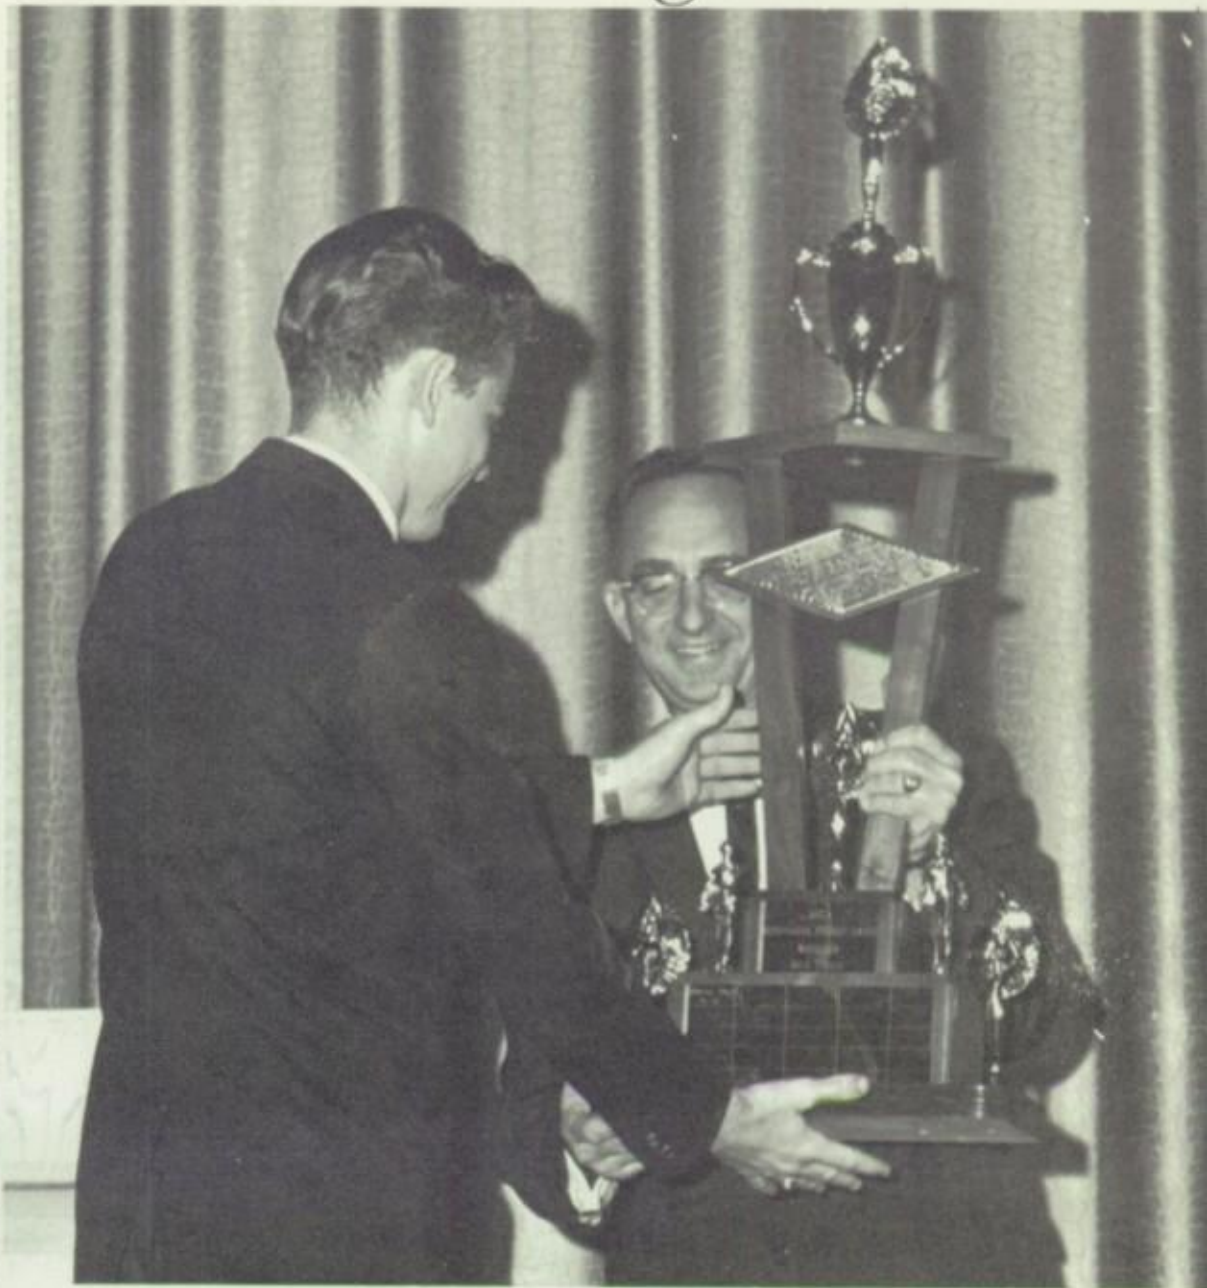

A DECA member is a citizen who serves on many and varied projects in his community. A member develops socially, thus he is able to understand better the people around him. Leadership opportunities, an important quality in an individual, also is offered to the DE student. He is educated in many types of businesses and understands the distributive occupations.

Local, state, and nation club meetings offer advancement to members seeking offices in the organization. These campaigns involve planning club projects as financial aids and field trips to study business operations.

DECA's emblem also consists of a wrapped package in the center of the diamond. It symbolizes a job, well done, not only applying literally to the student's work but also to the student, himself, as an educated individual in the American system of free enterprise.

Miss Dorothy Williams Keeps Cowboy

Miss Dorothy Williams teaches all phases of Physical Education as well as sponsoring the Girls' Sports.

Miss Dorothy Williams is McCollum's girls' athletic teacher. She directs four physical education classes and sponsors the Girls' Athletic Association for which she coaches volleyball and tennis teams.

Girls' P.E. classes are composed of approximately 35 students in each class. Miss Williams emphasizes physical health and ability to students as individuals and as team members. Basketball, softball, tennis, ping pong, badminton, tumbling, volleyball, track and field compose the girls' school program on instruction. Learning fundamental game skills is enhanced by lead-up activities, warm-up exercises, and pre-game drills. Game rules, history, safety, and strategy are studied for a more complete understanding of the events. Also, each sport's special terminology and equipment is studied.

As sponsor of the GAA, Miss Williams coaches two competitive sports, volleyball and tennis. Tryouts are held each year for new members who may be members of the sophomore, junior, or senior class. Volleyball tryouts are held in the spring of the school year and tennis tryouts are held at the beginning of the following year.

The skill "digging" is utilized when the volleyball is too low to set. This maneuver is completed by placing one hand over the other in a curved position and tapping the ball upwards for another player to take. Most any other method would be illegal, and a call of "lifting" or "slapping" would be invoked by the referee.

A well-played volleyball game consists of two sets and a spike. Used as a play pattern, the set and spike routine become offensive strategy. Since only the serving team can score in volleyball, it is necessary that each individual master the serve. As a means of putting the ball in play, beginners usually attempt an underhand serve for its simplicity of style. The overhand serve employs a great deal of spin, speed, dip, and floating action, providing a strong offensive weapon. Finally, the side-arm serve, valued for the active backspin, presents a challenge for the receiver who must play the rapid rise and dips cautiously.
